Storyline:

In the secluded town of San Rafael, where old legends linger in whispered tales, three siblings—Emilio, Amara, and Diego—arrive at their grandfather's ancestral home for the summer. Their grandfather, Vicente, was a renowned cryptographer who had retired years ago, spending his final days in this quiet town. Now gone, his house stands undisturbed, filled with rare artifacts, dusty books, and hidden compartments.

The townsfolk remember Vicente as a brilliant but enigmatic man. Some say he had knowledge of something long lost, a secret buried in history. His grandchildren had always thought it was just folklore—until the siblings discovered a hidden message in the painting of their grandfather's house.

Vicente was more than just a cryptographer—he had once worked to decode wartime messages and safeguard invaluable historical artifacts. His research led him to a secret tied to their family's history. Decades ago, an heirloom that was always told by their mother, an ancient key rumored to lead to a hidden treasure, was taken from their ancestors during a time of conflict. Vicente had spent years searching for it, leaving behind clues only for those he trusted most: his grandchildren.

As Emilio, Amara, and Diego begin to explore the house, they uncover a trail of puzzles—a bookshelf with strangely labeled books that reveal a cipher; an old grandfather clock that reveals a hidden code; and a painting marked with symbols, revealing a note.

Each clue draws them deeper into the mystery, unraveling Vicente's notes about Ang Kuweba ng Kaulhakan—a secret chamber believed to contain a lost relic connected to their family.

The final clue leads them to the attic, a place where Vicente once spent time studying ancient scripts. Emilio cracks the final code. The lock clicks open, revealing an ornate golden key, its handle engraved with their family crest. But the true treasure isn't just the key—inside the box is a hidden compartment containing Vicente's final message:

"Ang pinakamahalagang pamana ay hindi ginto, kundi ang kaalaman at alaala na ating iniwan. Ang susi na ito ay sagisag ng ating kasaysayan. Pangalagaan ito, at hayaan itong maging gabay ninyo sa paghahanap ng katotohanan."

After they received the message, they noticed a key with their family crest on it. Determined to honor their grandfather's work, they begin researching the key's origins.

As they prepare to leave, a sudden gust of wind rustles through Vicente's old study, flipping open a page in one of his journals. A single phrase catches Emilio's eye:

"Ang unang kayamanan ay natagpuan. Ang pangalawa ay naghihintay."

Their adventure is far from over.

Opening Scene

- Setting: Rainstorm outside, wind howling against the windows. Inside, the atmosphere is cozy but mysterious, with dark corners filled with old artifacts and shadows.

- Puzzle Setup: Diego's frustration with the rain leads the siblings to take shelter in the house. Nothing to do, they explore the living room. While exploring the living room, they notice an old portrait of their grandfather and his cryptic note, "Ang sagot ay nakatago sa bagyo." This hints at the first puzzle and begins the mystery.

First Floor: Living Room

- Scene Description: The living room is a large, dimly lit space with old furniture covered in dust. There are old photographs of the family and some pieces of their grandfather's cryptographic work.
- Puzzle: There is a storm painting on the wall, and it's clear that something about it is unusual. The painting has a text engraved on it (written "urkegu - 2"). This code is the first clue to deciphering the puzzle.
- Code:

Caesar Cipher: shift the letters in "urkegu" by 2

Hidden Code : "spices" which can be found on the kitchen

- Connection to Next Floor: The code leads them to a drawer in the kitchen, where the old cookbook named "spices".
- Hint System: Note 1: "Ang bagyo ay nakatago sa bagyo."

First Floor: Kitchen

- Scene Description: The kitchen is dark, with shelves full of jars and antique cookware. The space smells of old herbs and spices. There's a large, aged table in the center, and the siblings find a dusty cookbook on it.
- Puzzle: Among the clutter, a cookbook appears to have a few pages that are stuck together. When they pry them apart, they find strange recipes with cryptic instructions. Some pages contain symbols (pigpen) that resemble those from the family portrait. They realize these symbols are part of the cipher needed to unlock the drawer. They use the cookbook to cross-check the symbols from the family portrait.
- Code:

Pigpen Cipher: they find one strange recipe note in the cookbook.

Hidden Code: The hidden code when substituting the pigpen symbols is “Ang mga oras ang susi.”

- Hint System: Observation: cookbook pages are stuck together, symbols found in the cookbook match those in the family portrait.
- Connection to Next Floor: They decided to go to the office room (where it is the only room that has a lot of clocks).

Second Floor: Office Room

- Scene Description: The office room is filled with papers, maps, and documents about Vicente's work, a filing cabinet with historical references, and a lot of clocks against the wall.
- Puzzle: Six clocks display different times. Players must find the clock showing 3:15, matching the date in the ledger entry.
- Code:

Hidden Code: Through hints in the given clue or when looking at the 3:15 clock, The 3:15 clock provides coordinates: the hour hand (3) indicates the third bookshelf, while the minute hand (15) marks the 15th book. Pulling this book reveals a compartment containing the bedroom key and a note saying "Magpahinga ka muna."

- Connection to Next Floor: The key from the clock opens a door to the bedroom, where they'll find the next clue.

Second Floor: Bedroom

- Scene Description: The bedroom has an old, dusty bed with worn sheets, and a large bookshelf stacked with books. There's a window where the rain is still falling, giving the room an eerie feeling. The shelves are filled with books and journals, many of which are written in different languages.
- Puzzle: There's a hidden journal in the desk, containing notes about Vicente's cryptographic work. Some of the pages have strange symbols and diagrams, but they don't make sense without the cipher. The siblings realize that the symbol is the same as the symbols they've found in the kitchen. They cross-reference the journal with the symbols in the living room, which gives them a hidden message.

- Code:

Hidden code: “Nasa higaan ang kasagutan.”

- Connection to Next Floor: They’ve found a key leading to the attic.

Attic

- Scene Description: The attic is cluttered with old furniture and boxes. Dust fills the air, and cobwebs hang from the rafters. This space feels like a relic of the past, with ancient trunks and treasures covered in dust. They’ve found a box, inside they’ve found a key and a note “Ang kayamanan ay nasa iyong mga kamay.”
- Connection to Next Scene: A family crest engraved on a golden key. This key will later unlock the hidden treasure chest somewhere unknown.

Final Scene:

They reflect on their journey and decide to search for the answers and the purpose of the key. As they prepare to leave, a sudden gust of wind rustles through Vicente's old study, flipping open a page in one of his journals. A single phrase catches Emilio's eye:

"Ang unang kayamanan ay natagpuan. Ang pangalawa ay naghihintay."

Their adventure is far from over.
